84th Annual Governors' Conference Begins This Weekend in Princeton

As Princeton prepares to greet America's Governors at the 84th annual National Governors' Association Conference which begins this weekend, one question remains unanswered. Will the Governor of Arkansas, who also happens to be the Democratic nominee for President, attend?

Under normal circumstances, Gov. Bill Clinton would be expected to be at the conference, along with the 46 other Governors who have signed up. But the demands on his time are different this year, and, as of Tuesday afternoon, there was no word on his plans.

Conference organizers say he has been invited, but his staff has not yet made a decision. Mayor Marvin Reed says he has been on alert awaiting a decision. The Mayor, however, was calm, stating that Princeton's police have been ready for a couple of months to deal with the large number of people expected to attend the conference.

A great many people are expected, regardless of whether Gov. Clinton shows up. Princeton will greet the Governors with a banner over Nassau Street and the flags of the 50 states and five territories along the street, from Bayard Lane to Moore Street.

One doesn't just go up into the municipal attic for brackets and flags. The brackets were borrowed from the Hopewell American Legion, and the flags were assembled by the New Jersey Department of Defense.

Lucinda Florio, wife of Gov. Jim Florio, will join Mayor Reed and others Thursday at 5:30 in front of Borough Hall. There will be refreshments and opening remarks before the Mayor leads a tour of Princeton photographs and historic memorabilia honoring the Governors' Conference. The display may be seen in the windows of about 50 participating Borough merchants.

The Governors will convene from Sunday, August 2, through Tuesday, August 4. Some events, however, are planned for Saturday as well. Although most business sessions and meeting operations will be located at Scanticon, Princeton will still be prominent.

Among the special events will be bike rides to Princeton from Scanticon on Saturday at 2:30 and Sunday at noon. Riders — who one assumes will be guided safely across Route 1 — will pedal down the canal towpath into Princeton. Their destination: Thomas Sweet, for ice cream.

In honor of the conference, an 18th-century encampment will be open to the public at Battlefield State Park on Saturday from 10 to 5 and again on Sunday from 10 to 4. Revolutionary War reenactment units from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, and Maryland will demon-

GOING, GOING: By lunch time Saturday the former Railroad Hotel on Alexander Road at Canal Road was a pile of splintered wood and shattered glass. By mid-afternoon the debris had been removed, and there was a hole in the sky where it used to be as well as a hole in the ground where the foundation had been dug into the hill.

Landmark Building at Princeton Basin Demolished; In Heyday, a Thriving Hotel on Banks of Busy Canal

The rickety red building at the corner of Alexander Road and Canal Road was demolished early Saturday morning. The three-story frame structure had been a hotel in the bustling Princeton Basin community in the mid-1800s.

The demolition was a decision of the owner, Lillian Dowers and her husband, George, who were concerned about possible vandalism, fire or someone getting hurt at the vacant building, which was in very poor condition. Several windows were broken out, the roof sagged and graffiti had begun to appear on the outside walls of the ground floor, which were painted white.

The Dowers had sought unsuccessfully to sell the property, which Mrs. Dowers inherited from her mother, Della Jenkins. Mrs. Jenkins had purchased it for unpaid back taxes in the 1940s and lived there until shortly before her death a year ago August 1 at age 90. A strong-willed, independent woman, she was fiercely possessive of the house.

When the Historical Society of Princeton offered to purchase it from her in the 1970s and give her life tenancy, she refused, indignant at and HOT DOGS, DAY ONE: On Monday afternoon, John Tzovolos was out selling hot dogs on Nassau Street with the help of his nephew, Demetri Tzovolos. Mr. Tzovolos finally got what he has been seeking since 1986: the right to sell hot dogs from a vending cart. They sold, it seemed, like hotcakes: Mr. Tzovolos said he had 50 customers in the first 45 minutes.

Restaurateur Receives a License To Sell Hot Dogs from Street Cart

John Tzovolos stood beaming behind his $2,700 custom-made hot dog cart. After years of trying, the Athenian restaurant manager and Borough resident received a license from Princeton Borough to sell hot dogs on the street.

It didn't seem to matter too much to him on that steamy Monday afternoon in late July that the ordinance confined vendors to the south side of Nassau Street, between Bank and Vandeventer. Or that he has to move his cart "at least an inch" every five minutes in order to comply with the law.

For years, Borough Council has been adamant in its rejection of applications to sell food on Princeton streets. But a request by Abel Bagel owner Alfred Kahn early this year to operate a food vending cart eventually led the Borough in to permitting such carts. While the municipality complied with State law in allowing them, it was able to place a number of restrictions on the carts. These included restrictions both on location and on cart size (the reason Mr. Tzovolos had to have his small cart custom-made).

Mr. Kahn and Mr. Tzovolos are both Republican candidates for Borough Council this November.

At the Athenian Monday morning, Mr. Tzovolos waited for a Health Department inspector to arrive. He received temporary approval, but was told he had to have a portable sink in which to wash his hands. He plans to get one.

Mr. Tzovolos said he will sell hot dogs from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. all year round, but that he would prefer to sell them from across the street — at the Palmer Square kiosk. He said he hopes to get a variance from the Zoning Board of Adjustment that would permit him to do this.

In 1986, Mr. Tzovolos said he gathered 2,200 signatures on a petition asking Council to allow him to sell hot dogs on the street. The petition didn't work, and his application was rejected, but he never dropped the idea. He applied again a year ago — and this time he was successful.

About his customers, Mr. Tzovolos said, "They were surprised to see me. They like it. I'm glad I'm here to give them a hot dog."

On line at 12:30 were Kenneth Samuel, Fern Boyd, and George Castro. "I'm glad it's here," said Mr. Samuel, a proctor at Princeton University. Ms. Boyd, who is employed with University security, said, "I love it. You don't have to go far to get a snack."

The license issued to Mr. Tzovolos was the first under the new ordinance. Borough Clerk

New School Administrator

The School Board has selected M. Lee Pisauro, deputy superintendent of the Morris School District, as Princeton Regional's new business administrator/board secretary. Mr. Pisauro will earn $91,800 a year.

He replaces Robert Rader, who resigned and has accepted a position in the Westfield district. Mr. Rader's salary for the 1992-93 school year would have been $96,999.

Mr. Pisauro has accepted the position and is expected to join the Valley Road administrative staff in early October. The School Board will formally appoint him at the business meeting scheduled for August 20.

Penney Carter said she has received no other applications to date.

"I am very pleased he managed to meet all the standards in our new ordinance," said Mayor Marvin Reed. "The whole point of coming up with an ordinance was to set reasonable conditions. This indicates the conditions are not impossible to meet, but that they will keep vending on a scale appropriate to Princeton."

Township Man Injured In Route 27 Accident

Frank J. Telese, 78, of 303 Ewing Street, received minor injuries last Thursday when his car was struck by another on Route 27 near the Kingston Bridge.

Mr. Telese was attempting to turn left from River Road onto Route 27 when a car driven by Brenda Segal, 26, of Portland, Maine failed to stop for a red light at the intersection, according to Township police.

Ms. Segal, heading toward Princeton, tried to slow down her Honda CRX, but could not avoid hitting the Telese car broadside. She was issued a summons for a red light violation.

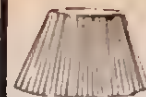

Mr. Telese was treated for pain in his neck, mainly caused by his seatbelt, at the Princeton Medical Center and released. This Wednesday morning at 6 a.m., he is back on the job delivering TOWN TOPICS to parts of Princeton, a job he has performed for more than 35 years. He formerly owned Tiger News Service.

Maybury Hill Hearing Continued to September

The public hearing on Witherspoon Properties' proposal for Maybury Hill will be continued at the Planning Board meeting on September 9.

The proposal involves turning five acres of the 15-acre property on Snowden Lane into 11 building lots, the development of which is intended to generate revenue for the restoration of the historic 18th-century manor house known as Maybury Hill.

The plans call for creating two open-space lots totalling six acres as well as a 2½-acre lot which would include the manor house and outbuilding. Marvin Suomi, who purchased the property from Princeton University and is principal of Witherspoon Properties, has said he intends to live in the historic house with his family.

Continued from July 7, when the Township and Planning Board staff outlined their reports to the public and the board, the application was squeezed between two other agenda items last Thursday evening. After Christine Lewandowski, Township Historic Preservation Officer, gave the report of the recommendations of the Historic Preservation Commission on the subdivision, Elizabeth Tukey, chairwoman of the Historic Preservation Commission (HPC), took the floor to read a statement in which she asked the Planning Board not to continue hearing the application until Witherspoon Properties had submitted its plans for restoration of the historic house to the Commission.

She said the restoration of the house should not be "bifurcated" from the subdivision application, that details concerning the style of houses and landscape treatment of the cul-de-sac in the subdivision had to be viewed alongside the proposals for the historic house and its surrounding area, and vice-versa. She accused Witherspoon Properties of delaying coming before the HPC with its plans for the house and said she was concerned the developer would use the bifurcation process "to sidestep the HPC and steam roll" the subdivision through the Planning Board.

Surprise and Dismay

Thomas C. Jamieson Jr., attorney for Witherspoon Properties, expressed surprise and dismay at Mrs. Tukey's statement. "I've been relying on the resolution of memorialization of the Historic Preservation Commission unanimously adopted May 4 which recommends approval [of the subdivision] subject to the following comments, which were the substance of Ms. Lewandowski's report," Mr. Jamieson said. "They must have had another meeting and rescinded their earlier vote."

In the ensuing discussion as to how to proceed, Mr. Suomi spoke of his hopes and intentions for Maybury Hill. He said at the time of negotiations with the University, he was the only bidder who focused on preservation of the historic house and his commitment had not wavered since. He spoke of his efforts at upkeep of property that had suffered "years of neglect" at the time he purchased it.

Mr. Suomi said that the house was a target for vandals, despite his efforts at keeping the windows repaired, and added that things like missing stucco were intentional, part of his restoration research. "The house is going to look worse before it looks better," Mr. Suomi said. "We've been accused of dragging our feet," he continued. "Nothing could be further from the truth. I've been working to get the best people I can find, and they have done marvelous work." He reminded the board that restoration is expensive and said his approach, to raise money to pay the costs by subdividing part of the property, has been used effectively on other projects around the country. "I call it a solution to a problem. Don't label me as a developer."

Seeking Planning Board consensus on the procedural issue that had been raised, Joseph O'Neill, chairman of the Planning Board, interjected a new issue. "This house needs to be stabilized," he said, asking Mr. Suomi and Mr. Jamieson what they intended to do about it. Stating that he and his client have no problem linking the restoration plan with the subdivision plan. Mr. Jamison proposed a solution.

He asked the Planning Board to continue the application to September 9 and suggested that Witherspoon Properties present its restoration plan to the Historic Preservation Commission during the last two weeks of August, in time for its recommendations to be available to the board on the 9th.

"With stabilization to begin immediately?" Mr. O'Neill asked. "Rewire the house?" Mr. Jamison countered, holding a long typewritten list of "shoulds" that had been prepared by Ms. Lewandowski. He later suggested that if the restoration plan is accepted and can be implemented shortly there may not be a need for the stabilization. But in the meantime he pledged that his client "will take appropriate steps so that the house doesn't further deteriorate."

A date with the Historic Preservation Commission for a special meeting at the end of August to review the restoration plan could not be set that evening, but the Planning Board, on Margen Penick's motion, decided to go ahead with the regular hearing on the subdivision.

Restoration Team

Mr. Jamieson then introduced some members of the team that Mr. Suomi has assembled to assist him in the project. First up was Wesley Sesser, owner of 18th Century Restorations of Pennsylvania, a group of artisans whose specialty is restoring old houses. Mr. Sesser told the board his firm had restored at least 15 houses on the National Register of Historic Houses and that it has worked on houses dating from 1648 to 1872. Most of these houses are in Pennsylvania, he said.

The next up was Michael Wright of the engineering firm Van Note Harvey, who described some of the engineering aspects of the site plan and the waivers that will be required. Mr. O'Neill then allowed a member of the public who said she would not be able to get to the hearing in September to speak. Jean Stratton, of Snowden Lane, described the proposed plan as "too much on too little buildable area in an historic area."

Ms. Stratton called for a reduction of the number of building lots and said at the very least, the first lot should be eliminated. She said that development of the property would mean a loss for the

Alexander Street Work Completed

The contract deadline for the completion of the reconstruction of Alexander Street was July 14, so that there would be two weeks leeway before the official start of the National Governors' Association conference on August 1.

The contractor, Vic-Su Leasing, didn't quite make the July 14 deadline, but Alexander Street is finished — a broad ribbon of smooth black asphalt with handsome new Belgian block curbing, gleaming white or yellow direction striping and a new sidewalk all along the west side. Along with the repaving of Washington Road from Route 1 to Faculty Road, which took place in May, the smooth surface of Alexander Street should make a favorable impression on the hordes of visitors expected in town over the weekend.

Completed at a cost of $466,000, the Alexander Street reconstruction began in March. The next areas of disturbance are expected to be Rosedale Road, Elm Road and lower Harrison Street, all Mercer County roads, which the county has scheduled for milling and repaving after the Governor's conference is over.

neighbors in terms of the natural beauty of the landscape, a habitat for wildlife and quiet green space.

"More development, more people are not synonymous with better," she told the Planning Board. The audience applauded.

1992 Municipal Budget Is Adopted by Council

By a vote of 4-2, Borough Council last week adopted the 1992 municipal budget. Voting against adoption were Councilmen Roger Martindell and Ray Wadsworth.

The tax rate will go up ten cents, to 90 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. This is a 13 percent increase over last year.

Although voting for its adoption, Councilman David Goldfarb voiced several objections to the budget. He said that spending patterns should not continue in the same way as past years, and that there should be a careful look at how money has been spent.

"We have to take a very careful look at possible places we can save," he said. "If we don't cut back to a sufficient level, I'm prepared to vote against the budget next year."

Mr. Martindell said he would also like to look at more substantial changes in next year's budget. "If David, Ray and I continue our thinking next year," he said, "we have at least half our Council looking toward substantial changes in doing the budget."

After suggesting that those Council members concerned about significant changes in the Borough budget start immediately being specific, Mayor Marvin Reed stated that the biggest item driving the budget in the Borough is debt service.

Too Much for Roads?

"This means capital projects have to be brought in line with the Borough's ability to finance programs," he said. He pointed particularly to a review of the Borough's five-year road rehabilitation program, stating he wasn't sure the Borough could pay $2 or $3 million a year for this.

The Mayor also noted a potential capital expenditure to finance building modifications that would meet the requirements of the Federal handicapped act, and said people were talking about expanding the library and expanding ballfields.

"These have to be part of a capital project review," the Mayor said.

To Mr. Wadsworth's comment that the Borough's taxes are pushing out of town a lot of people on fixed incomes, Councilwoman Jane Terpstra said that other forces should be looked at, including county and school taxes, state programs that require expenditures without providing revenue, and the current recession.

"There are a lot of forces causing people to go elsewhere," said Ms. Terpstra. "It is not necessarily the fault of the Council."

Now that the State has given necessary approvals and the budget has been adopted, tax bills are being readied to go out by August 7.

Borough Council was expected to approve a resolution at its Tuesday, July 28, meeting, that would extend the deadline for payment of taxes until later in August, possibly August 23.

The Borough will raise $3,936,021 from local taxation, up from $3,500,085 last year. The total 1992 Borough budget is $13,085,000, a slight increase over last year's figure of $12,900,000.

Quick Work by Kahn Disarms Youth with Gun

Add it to your resume for the fall race for Borough Council, "Alfie: Protector of the Peace."

A week ago Tuesday, Alfie Kahn, aka Bagelman (owner of Abel Bagel on Witherspoon Street), was instrumental in breaking up a dangerous situation involving several teenage youths.

The altercation began when two Princeton Township youths began arguing on Nassau Street near the intersection with Witherspoon around 8:10 p.m. A third youth approached them and pulled a gun from his clothing.

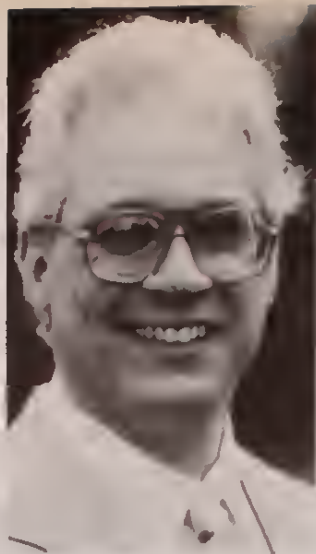

As reconstructed by police investigation, the gun-toting youth was then chased by one of the two involved in the initial argument, down Witherspoon Street and into the parking lot by Community Liquors with several others in pursuit.

The youth was caught by two others, who soon had him on the ground. Mr. Kahn, who had been headed toward his car, arrived on the scene at this point, and started to break up the fight. At this point the youth with the gun again pulled it from his pants.

Almost without thinking, Mr. Kahn knocked the gun out of the youth's hand with a swift kick. The 7.65 calibre Pistolet Automatique flew into the air, landing a few feet away. Mr. Kahn recovered it, and removed the clip — discovering it had been unloaded.

Three police cars arrived simultaneously moments later to find Mr. Kahn holding the gun, but the three youths had fled the scene. Chief Thomas Michaud said this week that the case is being investigated by Borough detectives, who have interviewed several witnesses. He expects to conclude the case with an arrest within the week.

The youth with the gun was described as a white male teenager, 5'10, 160 pounds, wearing dark shorts and a baseball hat.

Alfie Kahn

Protector of the Peace

He had long hair, shaved on the sides.

Improvements Approved Without Offending Fence

With one major exception, the Planning Board approved a beautification scheme for the rear of the Hulfish North parking garages last Thursday.

The exception was a six-foot-high wrought iron fence strung between a series of brick pillars capped with stone. The fence was proposed to be placed all along Paul Robeson Place and Chambers Street. From a drawing produced by Gabriel Sasso of Sammis Corp., which was appointed manager of this part of Palmer Square after bankruptcy was declared, the proposed fence looked just like the wrought iron fence that encloses the front campus of the Lawrenceville School.

Mr. Sasso called it "an architectural element" that was intended to give a "classy" and a "collegiate" look to the rear of Hulfish North. Extensive planting would be added at the base, he said.

But the Planning Board found the fence offensive. Mildred Trotman praised the applicant, Hull Junction Holding Corp., for wanting to do something to dress up the area, which she said "looks dreadful" in its unfinished state, but she said the fence sends a message to the neighborhood that is "divisive." Others called it a "Chinese Wall."

Interim Measure

Some Planning Board members questioned whether the fence is necessary, particularly if it will have to be removed when the 97 townhouses originally proposed to be built around and above the garages are actually built. Mr. Sasso said there are no plans to further develop the condominiums as planned, but he confirmed that the fencing and the landscaping that was being proposed is viewed as an interim measure. Planning Board members seemed incredulous at the idea of calling a wrought iron fence with brick pillars "interim" or "temporary."

The plans call for the vacant area between the two parking

Safe And Sound

At Familyborn, we know fathers have babies, too. We understand you wish to be involved in your baby's birth, yet still count on the experience and one-to-one support of professionals. And you undoubtedly have a lot of questions. For example, what are the best and safest choices for prenatal care, and giving birth? That's where Familyborn can help.

Our certified nurse-midwives are skilled health professionals. As specialists in normal pregnancy and birth, we provide your partner and you with regular individualized care. In fact, an Institute of Medicine study reports nurse-midwives are particularly effective in managing the care of pregnant women. And that their care results in fewer premature and underweight babies. The New England Journal of Medicine also reports a study comparing the care 12,000 women received in hospitals, versus midwife staffed birth centers showing birth centers were just as safe.

When your baby's birth day does arrive, your midwife will be with you and your partner throughout labor and birth. And labor will be allowed to progress naturally. Without unnecessary, or unrequested intervention. In fact, it is our lack of such intervention which undoubtedly numbers our cesarean births far below the national average. Of course, the same advanced technology utilized in hospitals is available through Familyborn as well. And we are licensed and rigorously monitored by the State of New Jersey.

To find out more about Familyborn, you're welcome to join your partner at a scheduled informational session. Not only will it inform you of your choices, it will more than likely help ease your mind.

garages facing Paul Robeson Place to be made into a ground level parking lot accommodating 30 cars. Planting is proposed in an island across the front of the parking lot to make it less visible from Paul Robeson Place, and the entrance and exit to the parking lot and to the garages would be at either side of this planting island.

The plans also call for the outside walls of the garages to be finished in brick with a capstone and gutters around the top, and low evergreens to be planted around the periphery. Grassy areas are proposed at the corner of Paul Robeson Place and Chambers Street and at the east end of the garage, but these areas would be behind the wrought iron fence and thus inaccessible to the public.

Ellen Souter suggested benches instead of the fence. Alain Kornhauser suggested a discontinuous fence. Hans Sander said the three areas of access that were approved when Hulfish North was approved should be retained and that landscaping should then reinforce those areas.

Members wanted the entire landscaping plan, plus the lighting plan, referred to the landscape subcommittee. Mayor Marvin Reed pointed out that the application for improvements to the rear of Hulfish North had been filed six months ago and asked why the landscape subcommittee had not been involved earlier.

"We had been hoping [the improvements] could have been done in time for the Governor's Conference," Mayor Reed said. "Obviously that's not the case. Let's hope this can be resolved with dispatch so that we can have the trees and everything in the ground in time for Christmas."

Mr. Reed's motion to grant approval with the condition that the fence be removed "unless a reasonable solution is worked out with the landscape

Cigarette Is the Cause For Thursday Apt. Fire

A cigarette that apparently fell from the hand of a sleeping tenant is being blamed for an apartment fire on Witherspoon Street Thursday morning that forced the evacuation of two families.

The fire was reported at 10:03 and when police and firemen arrived on the scene they requested a general alarm three minutes later. No one was injured.

According to Lt. Mario Musso, 65-year-old Maria deMartinez was smoking in a sofa bed in the downstairs apartment when she apparently fell asleep and the bed caught fire.

The area near the sofa bed sustained heavy fire damage, Lt. Musso said, and there was extensive smoke damage to the upstairs apartment.

Two 14-year-old nephews of Ms. deMartinez who were visiting also escaped injury.

Because firemen had to turn off the electricity, the family living upstairs also had to be evacuated. Both were being assisted by Red Cross volunteers.

Thirty volunteer firemen responded to the scene and had the fire under control at 10:20. They returned to their firehouses an hour later.

$35,000 in Copper Taken From Institute Work Site

A Trenton contractor is sadder but wiser today after $35,000 in copper sheeting was taken from his work site at the Institute for Advanced Study off Olden Lane in the Township.

On July 22, there was an attempted theft of a small amount of the copper (used for roofing purposes), but the box, two feet wide by 12 feet long, apparently fell off the truck used by the thieves, and was found on a nearby road.

A home on lower Alexander was burglarized between 11:30 a.m. and 5:10 p.m. on July 23. Entry was gained by cutting through a screen at the rear of the house. A camera and camera equipment were taken. A day later in the morning, a screen door was also cut to get into a David Brearley Court residence at Griggs Farm. While the homeowner was upstairs, the thief snatched her engagement and wedding rings from the kitchen.

Another Redding Circle resident was victimized on July 25 by a thief who broke in through a rear door to the apartment, and grabbed $71 in cash sitting out in a PSE&G envelope. Rounding out the week, a $150 dirt bike was taken from a home on the 200 block of Birch Avenue on July 27.

Stanworth Apts. Target Of Burglaries Last Week

Two apartments in Stanworth, the complex of homes on Bayard Lane between Cleveland Lane and Leigh Avenue were burglarized on successive days last week.

On July 22 a home on East Stanworth Drive was entered when a screen on a window was cut. A Hitachi VCR and $115 in cash were taken sometime between 11 a.m. and 10 p.m.

The next day a cut screen on a ground level window afforded similar entry to a thief, who departed with a pair of laptop computers, a Zenith and a Toshiba, plus several diskettes, and an ATT portable telephone. Total value of the missing items, $3,500 to $4,000.

Four days later it appeared the thief was trying to strike again, this time at night. Another Stanworth resident heard a noise at his front door around 12:15 a.m. on July 27. When he turned on his porch light he heard someone running away.

A call to Borough Police brought patrol cars, who found Michael T. Barry, hiding under his car a short distance away. According to police, the 37-year-old Dayton man was intoxicated and looking for someone, not attempting to burglarize the apartment. However, he still faces a court appearance on August 24 to answer a charge of criminal mischief.

P.U. Asks Merchants For Pledge of Fairness

In a memo dated July 25, Princeton University has asked Borough merchants to sign a pledge of fair and equal treatment to all customers.

This request grew out of meetings held in May between merchants and students concerned with the issue of racial harassment in stores.

Signed by Pam Hersh, the University's director of community and state affairs, the memo states that, in the opinion of the students, the pledge represents a visible and ongoing commitment to fair and equal treatment of all customers, regardless of ethnic background.

The pledge reads, "As a Princeton retailer committed to customer service, this establishment pledges to treat all customers fairly and equally regardless of ethnic heritage or racial origins. In addition, this business promises to work towards ending real and perceived discrimination in the community."

Ms. Hersh said that the pledge and its signatures will be published in local and campus newspapers, included in graduate and undergraduate packets of information, and posted in key campus locations.

"This past spring, the merchants and students began an important dialogue about town/gown relations," Ms. Hersh said. "The students have been most appreciative of the responsiveness which many merchants have displayed."

Arts Council of Princeton To Mark 25th Birthday

On Saturday, September 19, the Arts Council of Princeton will celebrate 25 years of nurturing the creative arts in the community. The festivities will feature a party under the stars on the top tier of the Palmer Square parking garage.

The evening, which is being co-chaired by Pam Good and Suzanne Goldenson, will proceed in two parts. Beginning at 7 p.m., dinner parties will honor many of Princeton's prominent artists. From 9 p.m. to midnight, the celebration will continue with music by the New Deal Orchestra and dancing and birthday cake on the roof of the garage, under decorated tents.

"The evening is a celebration," said Anne Reeves, executive director of the Arts Council, "to heighten awareness of Arts Council's activities and to kick off a capital campaign so that we can raise the roof and expand the Arts Council's arts center at 102 Wither-

Car Burglaries Continue Unhated in Township

"It's the busiest summer I can remember in a while for these small incidents of car theft. They affect a lot of people."

Township Lt. Sam Bianco, who has seen plenty of summers in his years on the force, made that observation while giving out the latest series of vehicle break-ins. A 1988 Honda had its windshield shattered by an unknown object while parked in Baker Court on the early evening of July 21. Earlier the same day a sharp instrument was used to scratch the paint on the side of a 1988 BMW parked in the Princeton Shopping Center.

Sometime during the day on July 23 two cars parked in Princeton University's Lot 20 were targeted. A right rear window was smashed on an '89 Honda and a Sony AM-FM tape deck was stolen. An '82 Toyota belonging to a Borough resident suffered a similar fate, but its owner lost just 75 cents.

The biggest haul came out of an '89 Saab parked at Battlefield Park off Mercer Road between 12:30 p.m. and 2:50 p.m. on July 26th. Its left rear window was broken and a Robbinsville woman lost her purse with $80, plus a Canon A-1 Camera, valued at $600, and a 125mm lens valued at $150. The handbag was valued at $225.

And the latest series concluded on July 27th when a Mercer County resident lost 20 cassette tapes from a car parked at the Institute for Defense Analysis. Another smashed window did the trick.

Two In Borough

Whoever hit the two cars last Thursday in Lot 20 (near Washington Road) may have crossed into the Borough to the University's Lot 25 (Palmer Stadium). A 1986 Honda had one of its windows broken. The vehicle, belonging to a Township resident, was ransacked, but nothing appears to have been taken. A 1987 Chevrolet owned by a North Carolina resident got the same treatment, but nothing was taken.

Renovated "Cottage" Named for Benefactor

The American Boychoir School is renovating the one-story brick building known as the "Cottage" into a residence for its youngest students, the fifth graders.

The building, which has served many purposes over the years, is on the school grounds, the Albermarle estate off Rosedale Road that was the former home of the late Gerard Lambert and his wife, Grace Lambert. The renovation has been made possible by gifts from the family and friends of Mrs. Lambert.

To honor four decades of significant support of the school by Mrs. Lambert, the building will be named "Grace Lambert Cottage" when the renovation is completed in the fall. Mrs. Lambert, who is 92 years old and lives near by, has been a supporter of the American Boychoir School since 1950, when the school purchased Albermarle.

According to the school president, John Ellis, Mrs. Lambert takes a keen personal interest in the students her scholarship gifts have supported. In addition, she always sends beautifully decorated baskets of candy for the boys at Halloween. "The baskets are a highlight of the year, and their arrival is always greeted by great cheers," Mr. Ellis said.

The Grace Lambert Cottage will provide a homelike living space for the fifth grade at the school. It will also contain two apartments for houseparents. At the groundbreaking for the renovation, George Pitcher, a friend of Mrs. Lambert and her biographer, said, "Grace has no children of her own, but she has always loved young people — so I feel sure she is happy to know that for years and years to come a great many youngsters will live happily in her Cottage."

New Program at PDS To Help Trenton Youth

"Summer Stuff" is a new and inventive program at Princeton Day School for educationally underprivileged children from the inner-city area of Trenton.

Made possible by a grant from the J. Seward Johnson Sr. Charitable Trusts, the program is designed to improve the reading and writing skills of selected students, primarily from the Washington School in Trenton, who will enter the sixth grade in September. The principal there, Morris Kimball, father of Morris Jr., PDS '87, and two fifth grade teachers, identified the students whom they felt would benefit most from the program, which will run for three consecutive summers.

The pilot program was conceived and implemented by Princeton Day School teachers of English in the upper school Gwendolyn Reed and Barbara Howarth. They are assisted by student interns who are either present or former PDS students. The program emphasizes language arts: reading, writing and speaking, as well as study skills.

In addition, each student has five hours each week on a computer, a total of seven hours of music and seven hours of art instruction over the course of the program, which has run for the month of July. Also, a special drama program, "Center Stage," is being directed by professional actors Tom von Oehsen, PDS '80, and Ev Therrien, who are teaching students fundamental skills in the performing arts.

The goal of "Summer Stuff" is to build self-esteem and improve academic performance by sharing Princeton Day School's facilities and staff with non-PDS students. The Trenton School System provides daily bus transportation and the City of Trenton supplies

1991-92 Annual Giving Sets New PU Record

Princeton University's Annual Giving program has set a new all-time record by raising more than $21 million during the fiscal year 1991-92.

Results from this year's campaign, which ended June 30, show that more than 35,000 alumni, parents and friends of Princeton made contributions totaling $21,500,713. The amount raised represents an increase of $2,790,678 or 15 percent over the previous year. Despite uncertain economic conditions, alumni participation was 54.8 percent, one of the highest participation rates for annual fund-raising programs among American colleges and universities.

Seven new major reunion records were set, including the largest sum ever raised by a Princeton class, $3,086,813 by the 25th Reunion class, 1967. Setting new records at more than $2,000,000 were the Class of 1942 at $2,401,742 (50th Reunion) and the Class of 1952 at $2,178,891 (40th Reunion).

Begun in 1940, Annual Giving is a yearly campaign to raise unrestricted funds for Princeton University. In its 52 years of existence, it has raised more than $268 million.

ESL Mini Sessions

The Princeton YWCA English as a Second Language department will hold beginning, intermediate and advanced classes the first three weeks of August for those students who do not want to lose proficiency during the usual August break.

High school students are welcome. The curriculum will stress conversation, reading, writing and pronunciation skills. Students will be placed in appropriate levels on the first night of classes.

Both the beginning and intermediate English courses will run for six sessions, Tuesdays and Thursdays, August 6 through 25, from 9 until 11 in the morning or 7 until 9 in the evening. The fee is $48 for the course of six classes.

Advanced English also will be six sessions, Mondays and Wednesdays, August 3 through 19, from 9 until 11 in the morning or 7 until 9 in the evening. The fee is also $48 for six sessions. For information, call 497-2122.

Women's Therapy Group Set by Family Service

Family Service Princeton Area is offering a therapy group for women seeking to define themselves in their relationships with partners, family members and co-workers. The group, titled My Mother's Keeper, will identify issues common to women and will explore the question of why women often have difficulty being direct in their expression of anger, tending to divert it from one relationship to another.

Gail Miller, who has been a family therapist with Family Service for three years, will lead the group.

It will meet on Tuesdays from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at Family Service's Princeton office, 120 John Street. The group size is limited to eight. A starting date will be set when registration is complete. A sliding fee scale is available.

For additional information or to reserve a place, call Family Service at 924-2098.

Transportation Services A Boon for Elderly Users

An almost unanimous approval rating of the transportation services in Princeton for elderly and disabled citizens was registered recently by users of those services, according to an announcement by the Transportation Task Force.

The rating was given in the course of a survey conducted by the Red Cross. The survey asked a series of questions designed to flush out the weaknesses of the system which has been under study and improvement for the past year. The Red Cross is administering a grant given by Princeton Area Foundation for the purpose of improving transportation services and their coordination.

The key question was "Do the services meet your transportation needs?" Of the 68 people who answered the questionnaire, 67 answered "Yes."

"This does not mean, of course, that there are no weaknesses in the system," said Elizabeth Boyd, who has taken over as chair of the Task Force since Margaret Broadwater, the earlier chair, moved out of town. "We can all see places that need strengthening, and changes and additions that should be made as soon as possible."

Among the current weaknesses is the absence of transportation during late afternoon and evening hours. In fact, this was the reason for the single negative vote on the question "Do the services meet your needs?"

Other comments, made more in the spirit of suggestions than of criticisms, expressed desires to have more frequent transportation provided to the malls, and to shopping centers not now covered.

Among favorable comments were, "... truly superb, ... excellent, ... the burdens of daily existence have been greatly eased, ... especially helpful, ... the best thing that happened to Princeton, ... a big help to us, ... truly needed by those of us who can't afford taxis, ... a marvelous service, ... exceedingly helpful and also lifted my spirit, ... makes life without a car much less difficult, ... grateful for this splendid service, ... I thank God every night for all they do for me."

Current services include Crosstown 62, a door-to-door service supported largely by Princeton Township and Borough and operating only within those limits; Red Cross transportation to medical appointments and some shopping destinations covering a broader area and using lift-equipped vans when necessary; a van supported by a Mercer County program called TRADE (Transportation Resources to Aid the Disadvantaged and Elderly) which takes passengers to the Nutrition Site and other destinations; and New Jersey Transit buses which have two routes through Princeton and take elderly and disabled passengers for a special discount during off hours.

"It's now possible for elderly and disabled persons to do their shopping, and to go to hairdressers, the post office, the bank, the library, and to visit friends pretty much anywhere in town for a small fee or without cost," said Ms. Boyd.

Medical and dental trips are free to riders, although contributions are solicited from those who are able to pay a fee. Trips to grocery stores and malls customarily carry a charge.

For information about any of these services, elderly and disabled citizens are asked to call the Transportation Hotline at 924-6244. A flyer with details of these and other transportation options has been circulated around Princeton and is available through the Hotline number and from various agencies that are concerned with elderly and disabled Princetonians.

Youth Writing Contest Will Reward Imagination

The Princeton YWCA is sponsoring a writing contest for youth in fourth to ninth grades. "Take Us Into the Future!" is the theme of a one-page, short story contest about what the world will be like in the year 2050.

Princeton Youth Department director, Rose Nevruz, says, "This is a young writer's chance to shape the world as he or she wishes to see it. Will the world still be divided by countries? What will transportation be like? How will we communicate with our long-distance friends?"

She would like children to think also about the medicine and technology of the future, how children will dress, and most important, what they imagine the world will be like.

First prize is $50 and publication of the winning story in the

ROTARY AWARDS SCHOLARSHIPS: The Rotary Club of the Princeton-Corridor presented three West Windsor-Plainsboro High School graduates with $1,000 scholarships to the college of their choice. To be eligible for the contest, entrants must pay a fee of $8 per entry and submit a one-page story by August 10 to Ms. Rose Nevruz, Princeton YWCA, Paul

Hiroshima Memorial Planned with Bishop

Bishop Thomas J. Gumbleton of Detroit will be the keynote speaker for the program "1992 Hiroshima and Nagasaki Commemoration — Never Again" on Thursday, August 6. Bishop Gumbleton's talk, which is free and open to the public, is part of the annual Hiroshima/Nagasaki memorial, sponsored by the Coalition for Nuclear Disarmament.

The event begins at 6 p.m. with a bring-your-own picnic supper (no alcohol permitted) to be held by the pond of the Institute for Advanced Study, located off Olden Lane. The program, which starts at 7, also includes speaker Rabbi Shira Stern of Monroe Township Jewish Center, music, poetry, and children's activities. The commemoration will close with a candlelight ceremony in which children will light candles and set them afloat on the pond in memory of those who died at Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Bishop Gumbleton brings to the anti-nuclear war movement a wide perspective, having been a member of the Bishops' Committee which drafted the pastoral letter "Challenge of Peace", as well as a delegate to world congresses for a ban on nuclear weapons testing and prevention of nuclear war.

Bishop Gumbleton, who holds a doctorate in canon law from the Pontifical Lateran University, Rome, has spoken or written on a broad range of subjects

More Memories of Community Pool Opening

In the article in last week's TOWN TOPICS on the struggle to get the community swimming pool built, former Recreation Director Don Barr was quoted as recalling that Jack Wallace was mayor when the pool opened in May, 1967.

In fact, Carl Shaefer was mayor at the time. Mr. Wallace did not become mayor until 1969. Mr. Shaefer has sent TOWN TOPICS a clipping from the May 28, 1967 Trenton Times which shows himself, then Borough Mayor Henry Patterson Jr. and Harry Volwieder, who was chairman of the Joint Recreation Commission, standing by the pool steps as the first two youngsters to use the pool, Constance Dryer and Warren Davis, are about to enter.

Mr. Volwieder was president of S.T. Peterson & Co., a construction firm, and played an important role in overseeing the pool's construction. Other members of the Joint Recreation Commission at the time were Wilbert Brooks, custodian at Princeton High School; Ralph Hult, owner/operator of Hult Shoes; Simeon Hutner, a business consultant now living in Vermont; Robert Sinkler, Princeton University athletic trainer; from the problems of peace conversion, the plight of conscientious objectors, political prisoners and hostages as well as the violence of poverty in core city neighborhoods. He is the founding president of Pax Christi, U.S.A., a former president of Bread for the World and has a long-standing interest in peace and justice in Central America.

Also, Dorothy Schoch; John Conroy, Princeton University tennis coach; Dr. Elwood Godfrey, X-ray physician at Princeton Medical Center; Josie Mathey, who was subsequently elected to Township Committee and served as mayor; Dean Chace, who was with RCA at the time; Bill Bonthron, former track star; and William Armiger, at the time a product salesman with Research Cottrell.

In case of rain the program, minus the pot luck supper, will be held indoors at the Institute's Library Annex. For more information, call the Coalition for Nuclear Disarmament, 924-5022.

Funhouse Band to Play Friday in West Windsor

The Funhouse Oldies Band will be featured at the weekly free concert sponsored by the West Windsor Recreation department Sunday at 6 in the gazebo at the municipal complex. The band will play music from the '40s and '50s.

Consisting of four members, Funhouse has appeared at many events and clubs in the tri-state area. It was invited to play at Philadelphia's 30th Street Station rededication ceremony.

At 5:30 the West Windsor Volunteer Fire Company will have some of its equipment on display. Additional volunteer firemen are always needed. Also at 5:30, Township Committee woman Connie Maglione will be present to talk to residents, listen to their concerns and answer questions.

Resume Writing Class At Princeton YWCA

Carol Morrison of Drake, Beam Morin, Inc., a career management consulting firm, will conduct a seminar in Resume Writing at the Princeton YWCA, on Tuesday from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Ms. Morrison will not only cover different types of resumes, how to determine which one is best for a particular person and how to write it, but she will also give an overview of what to put into a cover letter. The class is part of the YWCA's Directions curriculum.

The fee is $25 for YWCA members, $30 for nonmembers. For more information, call the Princeton YWCA Adult Department at 497-2103.

Perusal of Princeton's Shopping District Finds Most Retail Spaces Are Occupied

When the Governors come to town this weekend for their annual conference, they'll find Princeton's main street looking good. There are virtually no empty store windows on Nassau Street, with one prominent exception — the former Barnes & Noble store, between Vandeventer and Moore.

The Governors, however, won't be able to go to Thomas Sweet on Nassau Street, as they could have two years ago, for the pleasure of standing on line for an ice cream or yogurt. Although a great deal of work has been completed in restoring the buildings at 179-183 Nassau Street, which were nearly destroyed in a fire in February, 1990, much still remains to be done.

The buildings are owned by Princeton University, which has been in the process of rebuilding and restoring them. Pamela Hersh, the University's director of state and community relations, said that much of the University's portion of the work should be completed by the fall.

At that time, the tenants can start the work of fitting the interiors. Building permits will be required, and the process shows promise of being time-consuming.

The University has not yet announced who will run the small new restaurant that is being built in a portion of the space formerly occupied by the American Diner. While the former retail tenants — Zorba's, Thomas Sweet and Wadsworth's Gourmet Bakery — have said they were interested in returning, no leases have yet been signed.

On this same block, Nassau Interiors is holding a "closing our doors" sale; the Bank of Princeton has replaced Nassau Savings, thanks to the Resolution Trust Corporation; and a vintage clothing store has replaced a book store, which had taken over the space formerly occupied by The Country Mouse.

THE NEWEST STORE on Palmer Square is Irresistibles. All the retail space on the Square is rented, according to Palmer Square Spokesperson Jessica Sandler.

Outside the Central Business District, at the east end of Nassau Street, George's Ice Cream is now helping to feed Princeton's seemingly inexhaustible appetite for ice cream and yogurt. Aljon's has replaced Vesuvio's; and the Victorian building at Nassau and Maple now holds a furniture store, while the former gas station is now home to Nassau Liquors Grape & Grain.

New Chinese Takeout

Work continues on the proposed Chinese takeout restaurant in the house on the corner of Nassau and Chestnut streets. And, diagonally across the street, the now-empty Mobil station recalls the days when Nassau Street was "gasoline alley."

On Witherspoon Street, a "for lease" sign sits in the window of Furs by Marvin. The fur store had a pretty long run, considering that Princeton was never known for its number of fur-coated women walking down Nassau Street.

Impressions has moved to Nassau Street, to share space with Specs Unlimited, and the tiny Witherspoon Street store it once occupied remains empty. Also empty is the store next to Abel Bagel, which owner Alfred Kahn says he plans to turn into a grocery and bakery.

He is waiting for approval from Borough Hall to put in a freezer behind his store. Once this is received, the request will go before the Borough Historic Preservation Committee, which must approve all changes in an historic district that can be seen from the street. The freezer, if one looks down an alley, would be visible from Palmer Square East.

The earliest the Historic Preservation Committee could hear Mr. Kahn's application is August. Once he gets his approval, Mr. Kahn said he plans to open his new store very quickly.

New on Palmer Square

The newest store on Palmer Square is Irresistibles, which replaced Avant Garde, which replaced Wearhouse. According to Jessica Sandler, Collins Development spokesperson, Palmer Square's retail space is 100 percent occupied.

Teresa's Pizzetta is awaiting building permits so it can expand into the former Biarritz dress shop and Palmer Square Art Gallery. Teresa's has obtained the Nassau Inn pocket liquor license — which was supposed to be used by Main Street when it was scheduled to move into a Collins-owned building — and is currently using it on a limited basis.

In New York City, a walk down Columbus Avenue from one month to the next can show stores moving in and out with quicksilver speed. The pace is much slower in Princeton, but change, nonetheless, is continuous.

There is always the possibility, in fact, that in the time it takes for this article to get into print, one retail door will open for the first time, or another will close for the last.

VOTING VENUES HAVE NOT CHANGED: Princeton resident Woodrow Wilson casts his vote at the Mercer Engine Firehouse, possibly for the 1910 Gubernatorial Election which propelled him from relative obscurity as President of Princeton University to national prominence as Governor of New Jersey and subsequently to President of the nation. The photo will be on view, starting Thursday, as part of the exhibit in Princeton merchants' windows in honor of the Governors' Convention.

strate camp life, musket and cannon fire, military drill, and more.

Children's games will be available at various times and reproductions of period items will be for sale.

An interfaith worship service will be held Sunday from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. at the Princeton University Chapel, followed by a brunch for Governors and their families at Prospect.

Two social events — both on the Princeton University campus, and both scheduled to run from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. — are planned for the Governors, their families, and attendees.

"College Days" will be the theme of a party Sunday night under tents, with guests encouraged to wear a T-shirt or sweater from their alma mater. Music will be provided by a 50s band.

"Celebrate New Jersey," to be held Monday night at Jadwin Gym, will highlight each of New Jersey's six tourism regions through exhibits, displays, music, and special foods. (The six, by the way, are the Skylands, Gateway, Delaware River, Greater Atlantic City, and Southern Shore Regions.) There will also be a concert by the Beach Boys.

The Historical Society has been hard at work planning events for the Governors and their families. The Society helped train more than 300 volunteers with two orientation slide programs on the history of Princeton.

On Sunday, Historical Society Curator of Education Philip Hlayden will escort the Governors' spouses on a bus tour of historic Princeton. Also, guides Philip Shaver and Elly de Boer will lead special walking tours each day of the conference.

This year's meeting will be chaired by Gov. John Ashcroft of Missouri. Its theme is education, and Sunday's agenda includes meetings of Education Action Teams from 1:30 to 3 p.m.

Last year's conference was held in Seattle, and Tulsa has already been selected for next year's event. But Princeton has it this year — and it even beat out New Orleans for the honor.

"I think the town is looking beautiful," said Mayor Reed. "Fortunately, we are having a cooler summer, so the weather is on our side."

He expects the conference to attract many more visitors to

Princeton. "The fact that we are getting national publicity means that we'll have more people here this weekend, and the rest of the summer."

Correction

The date of the opening of the exhibit of historic photographs and memorabilia in honor of the National Governors' Association meeting was omitted in last week's TOWN TOPICS, giving the impression that the opening took place last Thursday.

The opening is this Thursday, July 30, at Battle Monument, in front of Borough Hall. Refreshments will be served and guests will be free to tour the exhibition, which is mounted in the display windows of some 50 participating Borough merchants. The exhibit is sponsored by the Borough Merchants for Princeton and the Historical Society of Princeton.

TOWN TOPICS is delivered without charge to every home in Princeton Borough and Township and to part or all of West Windsor, Lawrence, Hopewell, Montgomery, South Brunswick and Franklin Townships, and Griggstown. At all newsstands, including TOWN TOPICS' office, it costs 40 cents.

SEVENTY YEARS AGO: The TOWN TOPICS building was formerly Priest's Drug Store, shown in this photo from the Historical Society archives. Instead of prescriptions, it is ads and news of the community that are carefully prepared in this space nowadays. The photo is part of the exhibit which opens Thursday in honor of the National Governors' Association conference. (Historical Society photo)

NASSAU STREET LANDMARK: This photo, part of the exhibit prepared by the Historical Society for the Governors' Conference, is of University Hotel, which was also the home of Princeton Bank and Trust. Built in 1875, it stood on the corner of Nassau Street and University Place until it was demolished in 1916. The University dining hall known as Commons and buildings associated with Rockefeller College now occupy the site.

July 22, 1992

Dear Friends:

It has been our intent to send a personally written note of thanks to everyone individually from the moment we saw the first spark of interest during the Princeton-Pettoranello Sister City celebration preparations (which began some fifteen months ago).

Only minor variations from our original ideas occurred as we developed our plans for the celebration. The one major variation that occurred was the enormous numbers of people from every quarter in Princeton and Central New Jersey, and in Pettoranello and other regions of Central Italy, who became thoroughly involved in our celebrations. The numbers have become so large that we are now unable to write individual letters in time, to the hundreds of people who performed so faithfully and who gave so generously as individuals, as businesses, as civic organizations, and the media, with time, goods and money.

We know that the usual generosity of our communities was magnified many times to help assure the success of this adventure.

Our visitors were overwhelmed with our communities' welcome and our committee members (over 60 of us), could not be more grateful for your response.

Soon, (August 11-16) a reciprocal visit to Pettoranello is planned where we are sure an equally enthusiastic welcome awaits those who can attend, and many are planning to make the trip.

Further plans to continue enhancement of Pettoranello Gardens, in Princeton Community Park North over the next three to five years, to continue our library relationship and to establish a language immersion scholarship will continue our involvement in Princeton's growth through the Princeton-Pettoranello Foundation. Already underway is a regional hospital exchange program; trade exchange explorations and international civic organizations interactions.

Thank you again for your part in a not-soon-to-be-forgotten celebration of good-will and obviously heartfelt joy between Princeton and Pettoranello

Sincerely,

N. L. Carnevale

PEOPLE in the News

Bruce and Virginia Finnie, 228 Western Way, have returned from the 15th annual meeting and conference of the Association for Gravestone Studies held at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y. The Finnies participated in the four-day conference by attending a guided tour of the historic "Stockade" district containing some of the earliest graveyards in Schenectady, and heard lectures giving the results of research on such topics as identifying early carvers, the symbols they used, and various ethnic customs reflected in gravestone design.

Pam Gizzi, Montgomery High School, and Maureen Lintott, Burnt Hill Road School, both in Skillman, were among 26 school nurses who completed the fifth annual Johnson & Johnson School Nurse Fellowship Program, a week-long summer school program held at Rutgers University for school nurses from across the country.

The program is designed to give school nurses and their administrators an opportunity to learn more about substance abuse prevention strategies and to develop new prevention programs for their school districts.

SIGI PLUS, the current version of the computerized guidance system, is now used nationally in two-year and four-year colleges, high schools, libraries, corporations, community agencies and prisons. An adaptation is also being used in Australia.

Dr. Katz is the author of more than 100 publications. He directed the National survey and Evaluation of Career Information Systems in Secondary Schools for the National Institute of Education. He received his doctorate from Harvard, his master's from Stanford, and his bachelor's from Yale.

Alumni of the University of Richmond recently presented four Alumni of the University of Richmond Awards for Distinguished Service, including one to Lindsay P. Christiansen of Princeton, a 1968 graduate of Westhampton College who is associate professor of voice and head of the Voice Department of Westminster Choir College.

The promotion of Lawrenceville resident Howard Jacobowitz to distinguished professor of mathematics, with tenure, at Rutgers University's Camden campus, has been announced.

Prof. Jacobowitz, 48, joined the Rutgers-Camden mathematics faculty as an associate professor in 1978. He was promoted to professor in 1985. His new rank of distinguished professor is the highest title for a faculty member in the Rutgers University system.

"Dolly" Still Going Strong in Players' Production at Open Air Theatre

The night was damp, the crowd small, and the seats at the Washington Crossing Open Air Theatre were still wet from the past week's rain, but the energy level onstage was high as Pennington Players opened their two-week run of Hello, Dolly! this past weekend. Rained out on Thursday, the show opened on Friday night to a smallish crowd still skittish of inclement weather.

The role of Dolly is legendary on stage and screen. Played by Carol Channing on Broadway and Barbra Streisand on film, this memorable character progresses from meddling matchmaker to reigning queen of downtown New York. To Lisa Mosso, who plays her in all performances but Wednesday, July 29 (when Bobbi Mendel will take over), Dolly is a woman sure of her niche in the world, and confident that destiny has placed her in position to influence the people around her.

The role is a vocally low one, and Ms. Mosso's vocal strengths seem to be in the middle and upper registers (such as in the numbers "So Long, Dearie" and "Put On Your Sunday Clothes"), but she never missed a theatrical beat in dialogue or stage presence.

Perhaps more vocally suitable to the lower register of these songs was Kimberly Mehok, who plays the young widow Irene Molloy. Ms. Mehok portrayed her role with sophistication and a clear-edged voice which carried well into the theater. When joined by Sandra Vinton (playing the role of Minnie Fay) and John Kling and David Solomon (portraying Cornelius Hackl and Barnaby Tucker, respectively), this vocal quartet came alive, especially in the classic number "Elegance."

Pennington Players is a family-oriented production company, and their shows often include a number of children performing with their parents. In the ensemble numbers, such as the first scene "Opening," the children were as well trained onstage as their parents, in a directional style that included a lot of "freezes" while lead actors created small sub-scenes. Director and choreographer Judi Lehrhaupt re-created a 1930's style of action and ambience, and produced some very clever and well-coordinated dance numbers.

Ms. Lehrhaupt made good use of every moment of every song, filling them with action of some sort from all characters — no matter how minor — who were onstage for the scene. This was most evident in the "Waiter's Gallop" (which displayed an imaginative way around the always-present community theater problem of too few men). A great deal of thought went into this choreography and the players had the steps well in hand.

Other actors turning in strong performances for this show included Jim Kennedy as Horace Vandergelder, Adam Lehrhaupt as Ambrose Kemper and Michelle McMullen as Ermengarde. Musical accompaniment was provided by a large pit orchestra, heavy on brass and winds, which was prepared and conducted by Buzz Herman and Lou Woodruff.

Hello, Dolly! is a very popular show, and the bad luck of rainy evenings will hopefully not deter Pennington Players from achieving their usual solid crowds at the Open Air Theatre. With another performance under their belt by this weekend, this show should polish up nicely and offer a good evening of entertainment to the Open Air crowd.

Hello, Dolly! will be performed again Wednesday through Saturday, July 29 through August 1. Ticket information can be obtained by calling the Open Air Theatre box office at 737-1826.

News of the THEATRES

1988 Controversial Film At Kresge Auditorium

McCart Theatre's annual Summer Cinema season at Kresge Auditorium in the air-conditioned Frick chemical building will continue, with one show nightly of The Last Temptation of Christ at 7:30 this Wednesday and Thursday.

The film was the most controversial movie of 1988, if not of the decade. Director Martin Scorsese's adaptation of the 1955 novel by Nikos Kazantzakis, a passionate personal retelling of the Gospels that emphasizes the human temptations and agonies of Jesus, set off a tempest.

Scorsese's Jesus is undeniably a flesh and blood creation, and it is the very drama of Christ's duality — that he is both fully human and fully divine — that supplies Last Temptation's dramatic tension. Jesus (Willem Dafoe) is wracked by doubts and subject to all the human temptations — pride, anger, lust, power, fear of death.

The Summer Cinema double-feature for Friday through Saturday, will be Thelma and Louise and Rambling Rose.

Thelma and Louise was the most hotly debated mainstream movie of 1991. In this film, Director Ridley Scott and first-time screenwriter Callie Khouri present one of the cinema's most memorable outlaw couples, ranking with Bonnie and Clyde.

Rambling Rose was one of last year's gems that hardly anyone got a chance to see before it vanished from the theaters. Directed by Martha Coolidge and written by Calder Willingham, it's an uncommon coming-of-age story, one in which a whole family questions the mysteries of sex, loyalty and love. The title character, beautifully played by Laura Dern, is a promiscuous, dirt-poor depression-ere Southern girl looking for love in all the wrong places.

The double-feature offering for Tuesday through Thursday, August 4-6, will be two films which center around the art of eating: Gabriel Axel's 1987 Oscar-winning Babette's Feast and Pupo Avati's The Story of Boys and Girls.

Bedroom Farce Is Next At Hopewell Theatre
Happy Birthday!, a bedroom farce loaded with mistaken identities, will open at the Off-Broadstreet Theatre Friday for a six-weekend run. The comedy by Mark Camolotti will be directed by Off-Broadstreet Theatre producer Robert Thicke.
Jacqueline (Catherine Rowe) and Bernard (Tom Stevenson) have arrived at their country vacation home for a relaxing holiday. Bernard has invited his mistress Brigit (Wendy Yazujian) but to cover any suspicion from his wife, he has included his best friend Robert (Mark Murphy) assuming that Robert will cover for him. Complications arise as Robert and Jacqueline are also sharing a love interest.
Still further confusion bubbles as the domestic help (Deborah Allison), also named Brigit, enters the scene and is mistaken by Robert as the woman he has agreed to pretend to be in love with.
The five performers have all appeared at the Off-Broadstreet Theatre on previous occasions.
Performances of Happy Birthday are weekends July 31 through September 5. Friday and Saturday evenings doors open at 7 for dessert with curtain at 8. Sunday matinees feature dessert at 1:30 p.m. with curtain at 2:30.
Admission Friday and Sunday is $15.75, Saturday admission is $17.25. Price includes dessert, show and N.J. sales tax. There is a senior citizen discount for Sunday matinees.

Interim Dean Named At the Choir College

Rider College has announced the appointment of Allen Crowell as interim dean of Westminster Choir College. The School of Music of Rider College.

Currently chair of the conducting department, professor of conducting and conductor of the Westminster Singers, Mr. Crowell will be the chief academic administrator, spokesperson and advocate for Westminster, which merged with Rider College this summer. A national search for a permanent dean will be conducted during the coming academic year.

In announcing the appointment, Rider President J. Barton Luedke said, "In addition to his fine reputation in the field of music, it is clear to me that Allen has earned the respect and confidence of his colleagues on the Princeton campus. His knowledge of the Choir College, his professional background and his personal style make him the perfect choice for this assignment. I am confident he can help move us through the next phase of institutional development."

Mr. Crowell earned his bachelor's degree from Westminster Choir College and his master's degree from The Catholic University of America. While a student at Westminster he was a soloist with the Westminster Choir under the founder of the school, Dr. John Finley Williamson.

As a member of the United States Army Chorus of Washington, D.C., he served for five years as bass soloist and enlisted leader until he received a direct commission to second lieutenant. He then became associate bandmaster of the United States Army Band and director of The United States Army Chorus.

As a vocal soloist, he has appeared with Washington's National Symphony and the orchestras of Baltimore, Annapolis and York, Pa., the Paul Hill Chorale, the Washington Oratorio Society and the Bach Festival of Bethlehem, Pa.

Handbell Choir Here For Concert in Chapel

The Raleigh Ringers, a community handbell choir from Raleigh, N.C., will perform Monday at 7 in Bristol Chapel on the campus of Westminster Choir College.

Their program will feature sacred and secular music, including the Overture of Carmen and Hava Nagila. It will also include the New Jersey premiere of two original pieces written for the Raleigh Ringers, Illumination by Dr. William Payn and Festive Jubilation by Paul McKlveen.

The Raleigh Ringers is a 14-member group which rings a five-octave, 61-note set of Malmark handbells. Directed by David M. Harris, it is one of three handbell choirs to be featured at the 1992 American Guild of English Handbell Ringers Director's Seminar in Springfield, Mass. The Ringers also appeared in concert in May at the Spoleto Festival in Charleston, S.C.

The public is invited to attend at no charge. For more information call the Westminster Choir College Office of Concerts and Special Events at 921-2663.

Brass Band Scheduled For Outdoor Concert

The Rutgers Alumni Brass Band will perform on Friday at 7 at the Woodlot Park amphitheater on New Road, Kendall Park.

The 30-piece group consists of both Rutgers alumni and Rutgers Music Department staff. Following traditional instrumentalization, the band includes cornets, horns, baritone, euphoniums, trombones, tubas and percussion. The musicians will play a selection of well known "pops" pieces as well as show tunes, including familiar numbers such as "76 Trombones," a medley from Oklahoma, and "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

The program lasts until 8:15. In the event of rain, it will be held inside the air-conditioned South Brunswick Senior Center, located in the rear of the municipal complex on Route 522, Monmouth Junction.

For the outdoor concert, the audience should bring lawn chairs and blankets for seating, and also a picnic if desired.

Waterloo Chamber Series Plans Concert on Friday

The Waterloo at Princeton Chamber Music Series will present a concert Friday at 8:30 in Richardson Auditorium.

The program will begin with a prelude and fugue from J.S. Bach's The Well-Tempered Clavier performed first on the harpsichord and then on the piano. The program also includes Quartet No. 10 (1966) by David Diamond, Soli I by Carlos Chavez, Theme and Variations for Percussion by William Kraft, and Horn Trio in E Flat Major, op. 40 by Brahms.

The performers are faculty members of the Waterloo Summer Music School, located on the Princeton University campus. Tickets are $10, $8.50 for seniors and students with a Princeton I.D.

Picnicking Pre-empted

There will be no picnicking behind and around Alexander Hall this Thursday before the 8 p.m. concert by the Lark Quartet.

Friends of Open Space Support Planning Board

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The enclosed letter was submitted by Friends of Princeton Open Space to the Regional Planning Board at its June 18 hearing on a possible settlement of the lawsuit brought by the Institute for Advanced Study. As yet, no settlement has been reached and we do not know whether any settlement will address our concerns. The Friends of Princeton Open Space hope you will print this to remind members of the public that there is still much work to be done to preserve the Institute lands.

As you know, the Institute for Advanced Study filed a lawsuit against the Princeton Regional Planning Board because of the treatment of the Institute's land in the 1989 Master Plan. The Master Plan treatment would limit development of the Institute's land to 73.4 of 537.4 acres with 188 single-family houses.

The Master Plan is not implemented by current zoning, which would permit 250 single-family houses, or 150 size-restricted townhouses plus 225 single-family houses, both in a cluster development with 40% open space required.

The Planning Board's settlement proposal, which was explained at the June 11, 1992 meeting, would permit 276 units of housing on 105 acres of farmland set back from Quaker Road and bordered on three sides by the woods. The woods and 120 acres of farmland (80% of the tract) would remain as permanent open space. The Institute would promise not to develop the tract for 10 years, and after that, any development would be phased over five years.

We wish to endorse the Planning Board's proposal for the reasons, and subject to the concerns, expressed below:

1. The proposal represents a reduction in numbers of units and total developable area from current zoning. The amount of required open space would increase from 40% to 80%. We assume that a settlement along these lines will be implemented by changing the zoning to conform to the settlement agreement, and urge Township committee to take that action. On the other hand, the chances that the zoning will be changed to conform to the more restrictive Master Plan appear minimal.

2. We do not intend to endorse the location of houses, roads, a school, soccer fields or other development in any particular part of the site, although the Board's proposal contemplates this. We believe that the development rights or conservation easements should be purchased on the areas where development would be permitted under this proposal, so that neither the woods nor the farmland nor the state and federal historic site area need be disturbed. The identification of a specific development area and number of permitted units for valuation purposes, coupled with a ten-year moratorium

Chocolate Cat Not Part Of Hoagie Haven Suit

To the Editor, Town Topics:

We wish to correct a slight misstatement in your July 22 issue regarding the Hoagie Haven controversy. Chocolate Cat's only concern is to provide a small amount of prompt help to the six men who are presently unemployed and have no real way to cope with our system.

We do not wish to take sides in this matter, and are not interested in financing a lawsuit. In fact we are a great fan of Hoagie Haven and we hope this matter can be settled amicably.

We should point out that Chocolate Cat is always interested in supporting individuals and projects that will help the community and we welcome requests and ideas. Our address is:

THE CHOCOLATE CAT
P.O. Box 85
Kingston, NJ 08528

Editor's Note: The article's sole reference to the Chocolate Cat stated that he (or she) had agreed to contribute $500 toward the founding of a legal services organization that would provide help to those in the community who are in need of such assistance. This information was supplied by attorney Roger Martindell.

on development, should enable the preservation effort to move forward.

In that regard, we believe it should be clear in any agreement that the Institute will not only not develop, but will not sell or give an option to purchase the land during the 10-year period, and that any subsequent sale will be subject to the terms of the settlement between the Board and the Institute (which should be incorporated in the relevant documents of sale).

3. We hope that, in addition to the exclusion of development, the Institute will give assurances that it will take all appropriate steps to maintain the woods in perpetuity as they are today, serving as a sanctuary for wildlife.

4. We would urge the Institute to put forward, as soon as possible after agreement is reached, a plan for the phased purchase of conservation easements on the property designated as developable in the Planning Board's proposal.

It is our intention to meet with other interested groups to establish a funding strategy for that purpose, including ways to defray the costs to Princeton Township of accepting the 2%, 20-year loan from Green Acres that is presently available for the Institute lands.

We cannot over-emphasize what a mistake it would be, if the proposed settlement goes through, to put off these funding issues for the next nine or 10 years. During that period the value of the land will surely increase, and many opportunities for funding, as well as time to obtain it, will be irretrievably lost.

Development of this property, even under the limits imposed by the proposed settlement, would have very serious negative consequences. To mention just one, the impact of 276 housing units in close proximity to the woods would seriously jeopardize their role as wildlife habitat and a stopping place for migrating birds. The proposal under consideration is only one step in the process of protecting the Institute lands. Friends of Princeton Open Space is looking forward to completing the journey.

WENDY L. MAGER
President, Friends of Princeton Open Space

Art Museum Announces Upcoming Exhibitions

"The Art of Pictorial Photography 1890-1925," will lead off the fall exhibition schedule at the Princeton University Art Museum. It will be on view from September 19 through November 1.

From November 14 through January 24, 1993, the museum will hold an exhibit entitled "Suzy Frelinghuysen and George L.K. Morris: Aspects of Their Work and Collection."

"The Art of Holy Russia: The Gates of Mystery," is scheduled for November 17 through February 7, 1993. Also scheduled, with the dates to be announced, is a 25th anniversary exhibition, "The John B. Putnam Jr. Memorial Collection."

Exhibitions scheduled for 1993 include "Twentieth-Century Master Works on Paper and Sculpture from the Nowinski Collection (February 28 through April 11); "The Sleep of Reason — Reality and Fantasy in the Print Series of Goya," (February 28 through April 11); "American Drawings from the Feld Family Collection," (April 24 through June 9); "Class of 1953 Collections," April through June);

Also, "Goddess and Polis: The Panathenaic Festival in Ancient Athens (August 31 through November 28); "Frantz Photos," a tentative title, (dates to be announced); "What Photographs Look Like (September 21 through October 24); and "Contemporary Photographs," (November 23 through January 9, 1994.)

For the third event in the Trenton Artists Workshop summer series, member artists were asked to submit new or previously unshown works which best represent their personal vision, along with a statement of what they are striving to achieve artistically. This gives the artists an opportunity to express their views and feelings about their work in both written statements and visual art.

The exhibit, at Ellarslie, the Trenton City Museum in Cadwalader Park, will remain on view until August 9. Ellarslie can be reached from the main park entrance on Parkside Avenue. The museum is open to the public free of charge from 11 to 3, Tuesday through Saturday, and from 2 to 4 on Sunday.

The artists whose work will be exhibited are Christopher M. MacKinnon, Sara Soffer and Idaherma Williams of Princeton, Paula Bellando, Marguerite Doernbach and Deirdre McGrail of Trenton, Dan Finaldi of Highland Park, Ken Kaplowitz of Hopewell, Elizabeth McCue of Yardley, Pa., Florence Moonan of Stockton, Ann Reeves of Hackettstown.

Post 218 Finishes 2-25; Parker Looks to 1993

Say this for Tom Parker: despite its record, he never lost faith in the ability of his Princeton Post 218 American Legion team.

When Post 218 lost its final game of the season last week, a 16-2 clubbing by Ewing, it marked its 21st loss in a row. The team finished in the league cellar with a 2-25 record, the year before, the second in its history, the team posted a 5-19 record.

"It was a little disappointing," agreed Parker, who has guided Post 218 all three years of its existence. "But in our final get-together, I told the guys, 'Hey, I'll still match you up with any team in the league.'"

"I'm not offering any excuses," continued Parker. "We self-destructed a number of times — made a lot of errors, but we were also in a fair number of games that could have gone either way. The ball just didn't bounce our way."

The one bright spot of the past season was a one-hitter tossed by Danny Wilson in a 3-0 win over Hightstown in the sixth game of the season, the team's second win of the campaign.

The 1992 season has been forgotten. Said Parker, "I'm looking forward to next season." He will, he points out, welcome back his entire pitching staff: Jeremy Rathbone and Derek Kaczmarek, who figured in most of the decisions this year, plus Darren Horangic and Wilson. Dan Sheridan, although seldom used on the mound, also returns.

Parker loses team captain Ben Stentz, catcher Chris Healey, infielder Kevin Shaffer and outfielder Matt Sheridan. Also Paul Procaccini. "Ben did an excellent job; he's been a good captain over the year," said Parker. "Chris really impressed me. Anytime you take on a new position (from first base to behind the plate) and bat over .300 that's pretty good."

Parker labeled first baseman

Looking Forward to Next Year

Geoff Spies, one of those returning, "a tremendous find. He was batting .300 or close to it all season and his defensive skills at first base are outstanding." He also cited the consistent hitting of outfielder Matt Deveau, who, like Stentz and Healey, batted over .300. All four were members of the Princeton High baseball team this spring.

Deveau Has Three Hits

In the finale against Ewing Post 314, Deveau had three hits, Matt Sheridan two and Healey drove in both Post 218 runs in the sixth with his hit.

But Ewing doubled the Princeton team in hits, 18-9, and jumped to a 3-0 lead off Post 218 starter Rathbone. Visiting Ewing then put a lock on Here's an incredible fact ... In the 1904 Olympics, the United States won EVERY gold medal in ALL the track and field events!

Ever wonder what the major league baseball record is for a player going to bat the most consecutive times without getting a hit? That record was set by Bob Buhl who played for the Braves and Cubs in 1962 ... Buhl went to bat 70 straight times that year without getting a hit.

FINANCIAL PLANS should definitely include Long Term Health Insurance IN YOUR OWN HOME.

One of the great comebacks in sports history was the one by Hall of Fame golfer Ben Hogan ... Hogan was severely injured in an accident in 1949 and doctors said he might never walk again, let alone play golf ... But Hogan, with tremendous determination, not only came back to play again but, after his accident, he won the U.S. Open in 1950, 1951 and 1953, he won the Masters in 1951 and 1953, and he won the British Open in 1953!

Ewing shortstop Pete Leopardi had five hits while Derrick Johnson had three hits in four at bats, drove in six runs and scored three. In its last three games, Post 218 was outscored, 45-4.

The season also ended on a down note for Princeton Post 76 which was defeated, 16-3, by Bordentown in its finale. The team ended with a 10-17 record; the year before it was 11-13.

Bordentown scored in every inning of the game, which was stopped after six innings. Post 76, held to five hits, scored single runs in the first three innings.

Express Swimmers Excel At Garden State Games

The Eastern Express swim team captured 18 gold medals, five silver and 13 bronze at the Garden State Games Swimming Championships at Rutgers University earlier this month in competition with 37 teams from across the state.

Two Princeton Day School students paced the Express with first-place finishes in four events each. Heather Payne, a sophomore, won the 100-meter backstroke in the 13-14 division in 1:10.10. Her winning times in the 200 backstroke were 2:31.09; 200 individual medley, 2:33.20; and 400 I.M., 5:21.25.

Frank Guan, a fifth-grader at Lawrence Intermediate School,

Ficarro, Mercer Remain Tied in Women's Softball

The final games of regular season play in the Women's Softball League were postponed last week because of Thursday's rain with Princeton-based Steve Ficarro's Auto Body and Mercer Spring still tied for first place with 22-4 records.

Ficarro's was scheduled to meet Three Seasons and Mercer Spring was scheduled to meet Grove Plumbing. If both teams win their final games, a one-game playoff will be held Thursday at 6:30 at Field 3 in Mercer Park for the league championship.

Joining Ficarro's and Mercer Spring in the post-season playoff will be Grove (20-6), Logo Sports and Miller Beer, both 17-9, and Dot's Girls, 16-10. If a playoff game is necessary between Ficarro's and Mercer Spring, the playoffs will start an hour later at 7:30 and 8:30. Three will oppose Six and Four will meet Five. The first two teams receive an opening round bye.

The second round in the playoffs will be held Tuesday evening, August 4, at Mercer Park and the championship round will be held two days later on Thursday. Ficarro's is the defending playoff champion.

Teams not making the playoffs include Ground Round at 14-12 and Three Seasons, a perennial contender in previous years, which ended even at 13-13, one of its worst finishes in more than a dozen years.

In games last week, Ficarro's defeated Three Seasons, 7-3, and Mercer Spring handled Grove Plumbing, 9-3, to remain tied.

Doreen "Bip" Romanchuck was the batting star for Ficarro's with three hits in three at bats, including a triple. Winning pitcher Carol Ann Mazzella scattered eight hits and aided herself at the plate by banging out two hits in three appearances at the plate. "She's been hitting extremely well the past few games," commented Ficarro's general manager Bob Smyth. "She's on a streak."

Janet Comerford, Dee Discavage and Grace Durland all batted two-for-three for the victors, while Cindy Lombardo homered and Donna Nicholson scored three runs. Although it trailed early in the game, Ficarro's came on to oust Three Seasons, 17-8. It strand-

Powell Wins Golf Title 4 and 3 at Springdale

Don Powell won the men's championship for the third time at Springdale Golf Club Sunday, beating Steve Loughran, four and three in a 36-hole match.

The two competitors, who met in the finals a year ago with Loughran claiming the title, finished even up after the morning round of 18 holes. In the afternoon, Powell jumped out to a four-hole lead after 10, before Loughran cut the deficit to two winning the 11th and 12th.

The 175-yard, par-three 13th proved to be the key hole of the match. With Loughran's tee shot already resting on the green, Powell pushed his to the right with the ball landing near the base of a tree. However, his near-perfect pitch shot from about 20 yards stopped seven feet from the pin.

He then rolled in his putt for a par, while Loughran three-putted from 30 feet away for a bogey. Powell's margin, which could have shrunk to one, jumped to three instead. He won the match two holes later when his tee shot on the par-three 15th ended up about 30 inches from the pin.

Powell also won the championship in 1984 and 1986. Winners in other flights were: Beaten Eight, Craig Davis over Walter Hankin, 6 and 5; First, Colin Tams over Chris Heins, 3 and 2; Second, Steve Brenner over Dewey Dorsett, 3 and 2; Third, Lester Robbins over Tom Petrone, 2 and 1; and Fourth, Archie Browne over Peter Budd, two up.

ed 10 base runners.

Mercer Spring, easily the surprise team in the league this year, kept pace behind winning pitcher Karen Dolan. Tara O'Brien wielded the big bat with four hits, while teammates Joanne Lieggi, Cathy Dillon, Joanne Miller and Dana Nurko each had two hits. Lieggi and Dillon combined to drive in six runs.

Playoffs Are Under Way In Summer Basketball

Artistic Builders, which finished in first place in the Princeton Adult Men's Basketball League with a 9-1 mark, has advanced to the semifinal round with a 63-56 triumph over last place Bargman and Barrett on Monday night.

Leon Newsome, Marc Brown and Fred Young led the way for Artistic with 13, 12 and 11 points, respectively. Mike Williams tallied 16 for the losers, followed by Evan Moorhead with 12 and Mike Comfort with 11.

In a make-up of a regular season game previously rained out, SMB upset Chemical Bank, 45-38. Keith Jones led the winners with 15 points, while Garland Gilette had 17 for Chemical. The loss dropped Chemical into a second place tie with Billy Hill's Music Men, both finishing with 7-3 records. As the two split their two-game season series, the Music Men were awarded second place on the basis of more points scored (96 to 91) in the series.

Playoff games continue Wednesday night with fourth-place Bellini's (6-4) meeting fifth-place SMB at 6:15. An hour later, Billy Hill's will face seventh place Lawnmaster (2-8). At 8:15, Chemical will square off against Princeton Youth Sports, which finished sixth at 4-6.

On Friday, Artistic will meet the winner of the Bellini/SMB contest at 7 p.m., and the two other surviving teams will face off at 8.

"For the very best"

A FAMILY DECISION: Lillian and George Dowers came to watch Mrs. Dowers' childhood home be demolished Saturday morning, and their son videotaped the whole procedure. They plan to continue trying to sell the property, which is slightly more than half an acre and looks out onto the canal and Turning Basin Park.

possibly confused by the very suggestion. When Canal Road in front of her property was dug up to extend the sewer lines to Canal Pointe, she became extremely upset. Mrs. Jenkins had even been known to go after trespassers with a shotgun.

In the neighborhood she was regarded as something of a character — a woman who walked to the West Windsor tax offices to pay her taxes, heated her house with kerosene and moved her chickens inside the building to protect them from raccoons.

Historians and canal buffs expressed sorrow at the loss of a relic of Princeton history, but were not surprised. "I'm sorry to lose the building," said Wanda Gunning, president of the Historical Society. "But under the circumstances I can understand. For the family it was an inevitable decision."

Mrs. Gunning said the residential zoning and the closeness of the house to Alexander Street made it difficult to sell.

"I'm not surprised," said Constance Greiff, historian, author, and principal of Heritage Studies, a research firm. "It was so far gone." Mrs. Greiff said objections by the neighbors to anything but residential use made it difficult for commercial use. To invest the money that would have been required to get the building in shape would have required some business use, she said, pointing out that the building was originally designed as a commercial operation.

"It's really a shame," she continued. "There was potential there, but current zoning and economic conditions made it difficult." If the Historical Society had been able to work out an arrangement with Mrs. Jenkins during the 1970s, before the building had deteriorated quite so badly, there might have been a different outcome, she suggested.

A year ago, the Historical Society's Preservation Committee, chaired by architect Jeff Clarke, did a structural analysis of the house and reported that it could be salvaged but at great cost.

In Its Heyday

Facing the Delaware & Raritan Canal, which was begun in 1830 and completed in 1834, the building also fronted on the railroad tracks of the Camden & Amboy Railroad Company, which operated at the same time. In her book Princeton Architecture, Mrs. Greiff describes Princeton Basin during its heyday:

"Besides the hotel, there were two basins where barges could pull out of the traffic and load and unload; an office each for the canal, railroad and coal companies; a railroad station; a sash and blind factory; haypress, lumberyard and a manufacturer of iron roofing; an Episcopal Chapel; and fourteen or fifteen houses and two stores. The area gradually declined after the main tracks of the railroad were moved out to Princeton Junction in 1864."

In 1932, the canal was closed to shipping as the railroads became more economical. The hotel was turned into four apartments, a second story wrap-around porch was removed, except for a vestige in front, and picture windows were added to the lower level.

At one point it was owned by Mary and Theodore Proctor, relatives of Mrs. Jenkins' sister's husband. They lived on the second floor, and Mrs. Jenkins was on the third floor with her three children. Mrs. Dowers remembers the day when a bullet from Mr. Proctor's gun ricocheted through the second floor and just missed her mother, who was standing right next to the refrigerator.

Mrs. Dowers says he had just been released from jail for beating his wife, who had hidden his gun in the garden while he was in prison. When he returned home he demanded to know where the gun was hidden. Mrs. Proctor dug it up out of the garden. He cleaned it on the porch, went inside and shot his wife and then jumped into the canal, where he drowned.

Mrs. Proctor bled to death, but the court determined that he died first and awarded the estate, including title to the house, to her heirs, not his. Mrs. Jenkins hoped her brother-in-law, Frank Woolford, would have the house, but ultimately it was she who purchased it by paying the back taxes that were owed.

Despite this incident, Mrs. Dowers has fond memories of the house. She remembers fishing on the canal and skating on it during the winter. She went to the Penn's Neck School at Route 1 and Alexander Road and used to walk home for lunch. She describes her mother as a hard-working woman who canned and sold the vegetables she grew as well as eggs from the chickens she raised. She also did day's work in Princeton.

Mrs. Jenkins used to say that both she and the house would last forever, but if one had to go first, it would be she. On Saturday, as the huge iron jaws of a backhoe bit into the structure, neatly reducing it to a pile of splintered wood, it began to rain. Mrs. Dowers looked up at the overcast sky and the rain drops and said, "That's my mother up there. She's still fighting it, she's still kicking."

New Tenants Announced At Forrestal Village

The Sammis Co. is hoping that the quiet streets of Princeton Forrestal Village will soon resound with the footsteps of happy shoppers.

A number of retail tenants have signed leases and announced plans to open stores by September. They include Geoffrey Beene, Van Heusen, Corning Revere, Cape Isle Knitters, West Point Pepperell, Socks Galore, and The Book Cellar.

According to Sammis Vice President Mark Yeager, several more will move in by October, and one or two more by December. He said the center is likely to be 90 percent full by the spring.

Sammis was hired by the Bank of New York to manage the failing Forrestal Village after the bank took over the Route 1 complex through foreclosure.

One of the first announcements made by Sammis was that the retail-office-food service complex's retail portion — which had started out as pricey and upscale — would be converted to a factory outlet center.

Forrestal Village opened in 1987, just as the booming New Jersey economy started to fade. The contingents of well-heeled New Jerseyans for whom the center was developed failed to materialize, and store after store failed.

The Bank of New York's eventual goal is to sell the property. But first it has to make it more marketable. Mr. Yeager said that about $5 million has been spent on the conversion to factory outlet, and there is another several million to go. He added that the bank wants to stabilize the property, and that requires both money and commitment.

New Rabbi Appointed By The Jewish Center

The Jewish Center has appointed Dr. Dov Peretz Elkins as Rabbi, beginning August 1. Dr. Elkins was born in Philadelphia and received a Hebrew teacher's diploma from Gratz College and a B.A. in literature from Temple University. He earned an M.H.L. and rabbinical ordination from the Jewish Theological Seminary and has a doctorate in pastoral counseling and education from Colgate Rochester Divinity School. In March, 1991, he was honored by the Jewish Theological Seminary for outstanding rabbinic service, with an honorary doctor of divinity degree.

Rabbi Elkins is coming to The Jewish Center from the Park Synagogue, Cleveland, Ohio, where he was senior rabbi. For the past 20 years he has pioneered many synagogue ideas and programs which have attracted national attention. His work in Jewish family education, value-oriented education, havurah groups, mitzvah corps, intergenerational programming, specialized programming for singles and senior citizens, Shabbatonim, has won him the Solomon Schechter award from the United Synagogue of America. Many of these ideas are described in his book, Humanizing Jewish Life (A.S. Barnes, 1976).

Rabbi Elkins is known as an eloquent and thoughtful speaker, and has published several volumes of his sermons, which are used by rabbis throughout the world. His educational handbooks on experiential education (Clarifying Jewish Values, Jewish Consciousness Raising), are used by teachers, educators, group leaders, social workers in synagogues and other educational settings nationally.

In the various congregations he has served, Rabbi Elkins has increased Shabbat attendance, and encouraged broad participation, with congregational chanting, children on the bema, dialogues on the weekly Sidrah, and creative readings and explanations of the worship. After delivering inspirational interpretations of the high holiday liturgy for 25 years, he has compiled a two-volume commentary which
